Herman Quintana was born in Taos and educated in the Taos school system. He taught for thirty years, twenty-five of which were at Taos High School. In the spring of 1985, Herman died while doing what he loved best, teaching a biology class at Taos High School. During his own high school days, Herman excelled in athletics and became known in athletic circles through out the state as "El Elke". He loved teaching and coaching. At THS, he taught biology and history, as well as coached basketball, football, and wrestling. He served as the Science department head, Athletic Director and Principal of THS. In an unofficial capacity, he was a great counselor, always encouraging his students to stay in school. Many of his students, years after leaving school, would return to show their appreciation and to thank him for his concern. Through this small scholarship, we hope his memory will continue to live at his Taos High School which he loved so much.
